

לע"ב ששינא פיגא בת דן

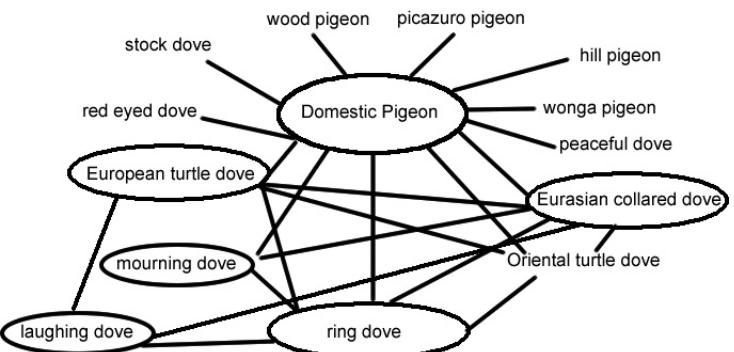

Biblical Ornithological Society Newsletter Volume 1: Issue 2

Brown Eggs

Brown eggs, specifically free range organic eggs sometimes have brown and red spots. The brown spots are not a problem, the red spots are. Meikar Hadin you just need to remove the red, however, the minhag is to discard the entire egg. With the increase demand for eggs many companies have been less aggressive in removing defective eggs, specifically those with various spots. The red probably does not indicate fertilization.

did not say it was a problem, just they didn't remember. It would seem that fifty years ago the Barred Plymouth Rock was widely slaughtered, and the shochtim generally did not differentiate between the combs of the different breeds, as long as the bird resembled a regular barred chicken.

Pigeons and Doves

The kosher pigeon and turtle dove species are able to hybridize. Pictured above, is a chart showing the documented instances of hybridization among the species. The species which are circled are those for which there is a recognized tradition of permissibility.

Published Studies

Barred Plymouth Rocks, Dominiques and Cuckoo Marans were raised and shown to older shochtim. All approved the Barred Plymouth Rocks, some were nervous about the black on the feet of the Cuckoo Marans. They

FOR THE CHILDREN

The BOS has been hatching many egglaying chickens. You can raise them for eggs, or just raise them for three months and then drop them off with any of the dozens of people located around NY who would be more than happy to give the young bird a permanent home. If you would like some newly hatched chicken please contact chad.bayad@gmail.com.